BUSINESS OVERVIEW

One small business, two strong pillars

- Sustainable pet bedding, sold via mollymutt.eu and marketplaces.
- A solo-run business with a limited paid budget.

Upcycling

Owners fill the cover with old textiles they already own.

Material safety

GOTS / Oeko-Tex certified, non-toxic.

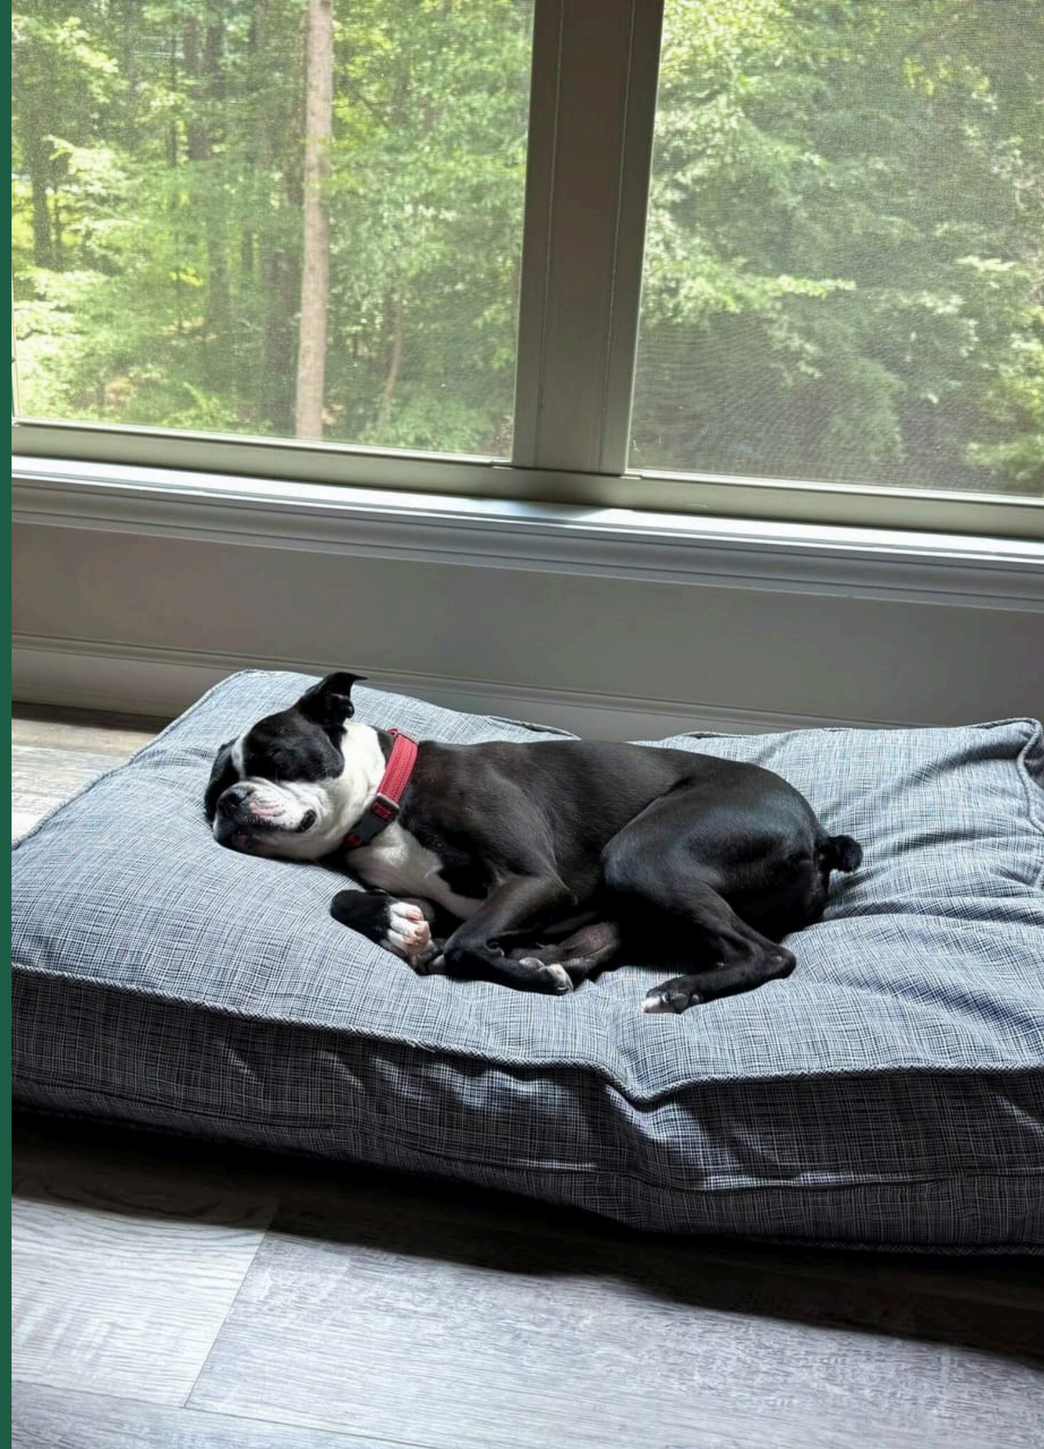

TARGET AUDIENCE & MARKET

The eco-minded pet owner

- Environmentally conscious, makes sustainable choices across their lifestyle.
- Values verified certifications, not vague green claims.
- Drawn to the upcycling concept and GOTS/Oeko-Tex credentials.

Why Germany?

- The largest priority market.
- Aligns with the brand's certification-led positioning.
- The Zooplus Germany listing opens in July 2026, giving paid social a retail environment to reinforce.

BUYER PERSONA

Who they are

- All genders, 25-55 years old
- Lives in Germany
- Owns a dog
- Already lives sustainably (recycles, buys organic, avoids fast fashion)
- Comfortable shopping online

What drives them

- Products that match their values, including for their pet
- Real certifications like GOTS and Oeko-Tex over marketing language
- Likes the upcycling idea

What furstrates them

- Tired of brands claiming “eco-friendly” with nothing to back it up
- Has to guess whether a claim is real or just marketing
- Sustainable pet products often still look cheap or ugly

OBJECTIVE & KPI

Website traffic is the goal

Objective

Bring eco-minded pet owners in Germany from Meta to mollymutt.eu to learn about the upcycling concept.

Primary KPI

Cost Per Click (CPC)

Target benchmarks · €300 budget · Oct 5–18, 2026

€0.45–0.60	CPC
500–665	Clicks
> 2%	CTR, as a secondary health check

Reach and impressions are context only. UTM parameters carry tracking into Google Analytics.

CAMPAIGN STRUCTURE

One campaign, one audience, four ads

AD FORMATS · HYPOTHESIS 1 · RECYCLING ANGLE

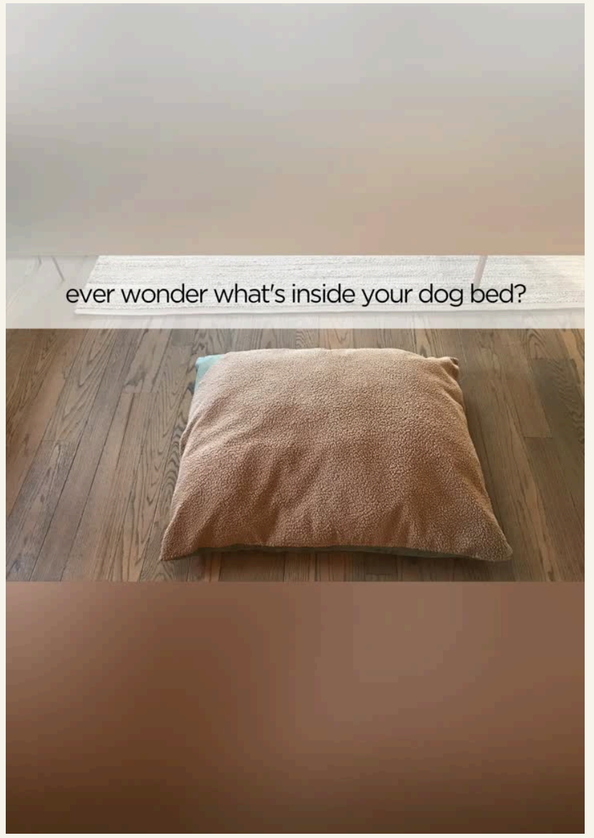

Video vs. Static image

Both assets already exist in Molly Mutt's library. Before adapting either one, we ask: does the video format do a better job than a static image?

> If we use a video instead of a static image, we expect higher engagement and CTR, because motion shows old clothes becoming a bed, visually demonstrating the "reduce, reuse, re-stuff" concept.

- Motion shows the transformation
- Makes the concept easy to grasp

AD FORMATS · HYPOTHESIS 2 · ECO-FRIENDLY ANGLE

Carousel vs. static image

If we use the Wirecutter carousel instead of the static image, we expect higher engagement and CTR, because The New York Times' testing team gives outside proof, and swiping keeps people on the ad longer.

- Outside proof from NYT Wirecutter
- Swiping keeps people on the ad longer

WHY TEST THIS?

Our audience is eco-minded. Does leading with sustainability work better than leading with an award?

Same claims and text. V2 also uses a green background and new dog photos.

AD COPY · ECO-FRIENDLY & RECYCLING CONCEPTS

Primary text: five ways to say “reuse”

01

Give your old pillows and clothes a second life. Turn them into a cozy bed your dog will love.

02

Why throw away old pillows when your dog could sleep on them. Reuse, re-stuff and create a cozy place to rest.

03

A cozy bed for your dog, with less waste. Reuse the soft things you already have and give them a new purpose.

04

Old pillows. Old clothes. New favorite sleeping spot. Give what you already have a second life.

05

Comfort for your dog. Less waste for the planet. A simple way to reduce, reuse and re-stuff.
